

I'm in Emalaheni and am settling in well. My apartment is peaceful and secure and lovely. Here are some pics.

Kitchen and front door

Guest Room

My Room

Living Room

Concrete walls, floor, and ceiling make for a cool home. That will be nice in the summer, but it's chilly in the winter. I have a portable heater and keep a number of blanket wraps for guests in the living room. I'll eventually get some more pictures on the wall and some window dressings. It's great having the metal venetian blinds on all my windows.

Bathroom with bathtub and shower

My neighbors are professionals of all types. Singles and young families abound, as well as a number of dogs (which stay in their fenced yards) and one cat (which greets me when I get home in the evening). It's a gated community and even has security guards walking around the grounds. Manga and her husband, Sbo, live just around the corner from me and Nombongo lives in the same complex, too.

View from the living room

View from my bedroom.

The sign reads:
Ridge View Security Estate

My car in its own covered parking spot
2007 Hyundai Accent
(I'm so glad it's an automatic!)

Because of all the concrete and the buildings around me, the best place for internet connection at home is on the stairwell. Won't be doing that! August is the end of winter, here.

Manga and Nombongo helping me with connection.

Finally on Facebook!

